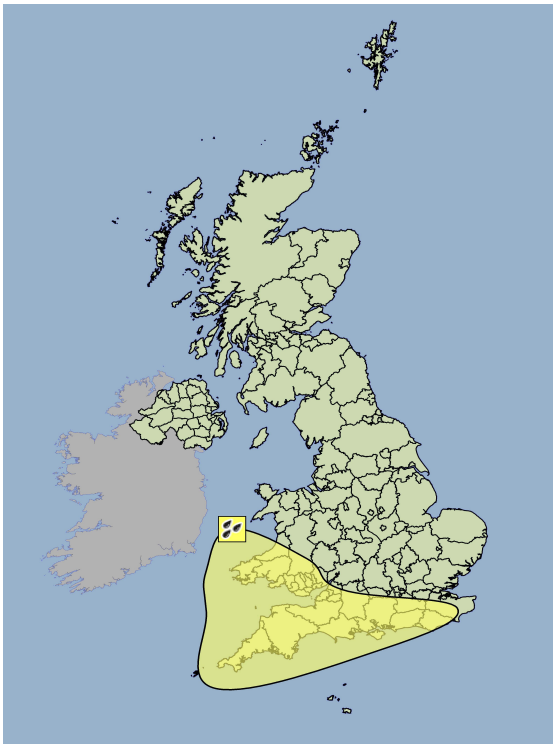
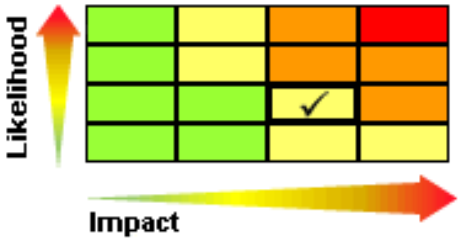
National Severe Weather Warning Service





CANCELLED

Chief Forecasters Assessment
Yet another rapidly deepening area of low pressure will approach the southwest later on Friday, before crossing Northern Ireland and central parts of Scotland during the middle of Saturday. A further 20-30 mm of rain is expected widely within the warning area, while 40-50 mm is possible on high ground in the southwest. Coming so soon after previous rainfall events, this is likely to augment the impacts.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Alert of Rain

Valid from 00:15 on Sat, 08th Feb 2014 until 09:00 on Sat, 08th Feb 2014

Another area of heavy rain will reach the far southwest of the country late on Friday evening and spread across remaining areas during Saturday morning. The rain will be accompanied by very strong winds, with gusts to severe gale force (70 mph, perhaps locally 80 mph), mainly in exposed and coastal areas.

The public should be aware of disruption to travel from the combination of this heavy rain with the very strong winds, especially in areas where flooding has occurred recently, or is ongoing.
